In the letter of recommendation of myself, I am an optimistic role model for others. Although I am challenged by being a first generation college student soon, through my education, leadership, and community service, I am able to shape my journey to an ideal future. Overall, I am very motivated and hope that through my life experiences and challenges I can become an even better person than I am today.

At Sussex Central High School I currently exhibit my leadership skills by being senior class president, an International Baccalaureate Diploma student, and captain of the cheerleading team. As class president I am compelled to make important decisions that will affect my entire class. In addition, I am an IB Diploma candidate. I exhibit leadership by taking these rigorous courses because I am setting an example for future students that may want to take the IB pathway into college. By having a job, sport, and maintaining my grades in this program, I am exemplifying how to manage my time as a leader. Along with being a leader during school hours, I continue to exhibit leadership at cheerleading practices, by spending most of my time frequently helping others get better.

This past year I started my own community service project. I was told that many residents of nursing homes are veterans and that most of them do not have family who come visit them on their birthday. Therefore, I took the initiative to contact my local nursing home, The Harrison House, and make an arrangement with the event coordinator to let me purchase a birthday present for each one of the residents. I am always willing to take any service opportunity that I know will benefit my community.

After graduating high school, my future education plans are to go to a 4 year university where I will major in psychology and minor in criminal justice. My number one choice is the University of Delaware. In college, I plan to get a masters degree to be qualified for the career of a psycho forensic evaluator. During my future education, I would like to study abroad to experience global engagement my school has to offer. I will most likely find an on campus job and soon an internship in my field. Those factors are important in my future so I can grow academically, and globally in my community.
